Important Information about Your Local Health Care System

The Waterloo Wellington Local Health Integration Network (WWLHIN) is committed to working with its health care and community partners so Cambridge and area residents enjoy a healthy community both today, and in the future.

As part of this commitment, the WWLHIN recently initiated an Operational Review process with Cambridge Memorial Hospital. Operational reviews are normal practice within health care as organizations seek new and creative solutions to various issues. This is an important undertaking and area residents have the right to understand the review process and its outcomes, and have accurate information.

- Cambridge Memorial Hospital will stay open and continue to provide high-quality care for Cambridge and area residents. The hospital is an essential partner in our local health care system.
- WWLHIN funding decisions are made through collaborative consultation involving our health care partners, expert input, and data support.
- The Operational Review Team is working with Cambridge Memorial Hospital's Board of Governors and administrators to provide additional assistance to sustain their success in maintaining high-quality care within the approved funding allocations. This collaborative approach lets the hospital develop a plan to support quality patient care, while sustaining the hospital through fiscal challenges.
